The tent's number of the Customs Gazette. for the second quarter of the present year, has been forwarded to this office. It contains in Peking during the half-year under conthe usual reports on the trade at the various |-sideration. Ports, which will be duly noticed in a short time. In the meanwhile, we may remark upon a new feature in these valuable publications, namely, a series of Health Reports from affair :the Customs Medical Officers, which are extremely interesting, and bid fair to become a most useful portion of these returns. The the 22nd of May, in the case of Kwok-a-sing, acfirst of these is by Dr. John Dudgeon, and treats of the sanitary condition of Peking during the half-year ended 31st March, 1871 Small-pox having been the most noteworthy disease during the period reviewed, Dr. Dun- ship, and therefore ordered Kwok-a-sing, though GEON devotes nearly half his paper to a care- ty. Of its prevalence there is only too significant proof in the pitted countethe pirates, and sail with them to the nearest point, nances of a large number of the natives. and there deliver them up to justice. The truth is, that very few of them escape it altogether, and the fact that adults seldom take small-pox except when it rages with peculiar virulence, is due to the fact that they have nearly all had it in their earlier years. They affec indeed to consider it lucky that they should have the disease, probably to propitiate the goddess-for there is a goddess -of small-por and measles. This amiable lady is inclined to be angry if derogatory expressions are applied to her gentle visitations, but of course it can only be in order to escape these that the devout native bestows on them high sounding names, and even goes so far as to say they are rather pleasant than otherwise. The case is rather like that of a little boy at school, where the big bully hits him and tells him not to cry. The knowing youngster invariably restrains his tears, and says with a wry face that he doesn't mind it, in fact, rather likes it. This is to please the bully, and this estimable mother of small por and measles does seem to be as wanton a bully " as you should see in a summer's day." Whether, however, the native enjoys small-por or not, he at all events en savours most energetically to avoid it. In this he is as a rule unsuccessful, and yet vaccination is known and practised in China, and has been known and practised for half a contury. It was introduced into Canton in 1805, by a surgeon of the East India Company, and in 1828 was carried north by the Prefect Tsens. who had been a Mandarin in the South But it did not flourish after Tsanc's death, and a miserably small proportion of the population are vaccinated at the present day. The number is decreased by the unwillingness of the native doctors to vaccinate in winter, fearing as they do allkinds of dangers arising from morbid airs admitted with the left Saigon yesterday morning at 6 a.m., and lymph, severe cold which might lead to smallpox or measles, irritation caused by the rubbing of the clothing upon the affected part, &c. The system upon which vaccination is conducted is a good one, as far as anything out of which money is to be made can be good in China. In theory, the operation is performed gratuitously at the various establishments, just as a barrister pleads your cause for the fun of the thing; but practically both the barrister and the vaccinator are open to some more material inducement. It fact, it is understood that small fees are accepted, and there is one custom which is peculiarly Chinese, and which, says the writer, "looks well for the philanthropy of the vaccinator." As usual it only "looks" well. The parents is taken. So far all is well, but unfortunately the small sum so contributed does not go to the child at all, but appears to be a perquisite of the institution, so that after all the apparent philanthropy is only another of the the first regular consus ever taken here,elaborate shams which the Chinaman loves.

Chief Justice Smale, of Hongkong, has probably done more to put down the coolie slave trade than Lord. Granville will be able to do. He decided on cused of piracy and nurder, that a coolie kidnap-ped in China for Peru has a distinct legal right to regain his liberty, even by killing the officers on board the kidnapping ship. He then went out for a policeman, but had to go us far as Lammert, Atkinson & Co.'s before he found one. On the road he saw defendant at about the Ice-house, looking into the direction of the bank very eagerly. He appeared very nervous, and constantly looked towards the bank, rubbing his hands. The policeman he found followed him behind, and it could be seen he was following witness, as a great many tooked at him with surprise. On coming back, the delendant still stood at the same place, looking nervously, and in the direction of the bank. Witness went on into the bank, where he did not stay one minute, and came back the same way, and did not see the defendant any more in the same place. In the witness's company was Mr. Ede, the Chinaman Pung-n-man, and the constable. He looked for the defendant, and could not find him. They then went to the bank, and from thence

Mr. Brereton having appeared, the case then Pung-a-mun stated he knew the defendant seven years. He had sold goods to bim at Macao, and he knew him here, by his coming to bis shop in a chair, which he got out of, and then said, "You chow-chow finish, you come my house, have got pidgin." The witness said, "Very well, after I have finished I will come." After a few minutes be put on his jacket and went to the defendant's house, in a street in the centre of the town. He went upstairs, saw'the defendant and bis wife, and asked him what he wanted. He replied in Chinese that he wanted him to go to the bank to get money for him. He said, "What bank?" Defendant said, "Hongkong and Shanghai," Witness then asked what money, and defendant said he would show him, and going to a draw in his desk he took from it a paper and said: "This is Insurance money," adding. "Now let us go." Witness said. "Now is this going to get me in Gaol? Defendant stated: "No; the money is mine don't be afraid:" and then banded bim the paper. They then started, witness accompanied by defendant, along Wyndham Street and down Ice House Lane. Witness went on to the Bank, the defendant staying behind. He went in and showed the paper to one of the Chinese in the Bank, who took it to last witness, and he came and asked him about something, referring to the paper.

Mr. May shewed witness the paper, which he recognised as the one he took, and was spoken to about by the last witness. He continued It was in the same state as when he took it. He then proceeded with the constable into whose charge he was given, accompanied by some other gentlemen. He gave his informa--tion, and was hound-down-in-a-security, which he failed to find. He was then sent to Gaol. He went in company of defendant, and whilst going in the defendant said to him in Chinese: "Do not say I gave the paper to you, but say you picked it up." At the time there was an European turnkey in charge. Mr. Brereton usked this witness if he could read Englieb.

day, before A. Lister, Esq., Coroner, and a jury, at sea for about twenty years, fifteen years on the China coast, shipped on board his last ship at Shanghai. Gave his discharge from previous Solicit inspection of the undermentioned Goods ship to the captain; was two mouths on board. This was the only ship be could get at Shanghai. There were eight Malays on board. I knew them before they joined. There were two whose names I do not know. They were Christians, and belong to Timor. Liked the ship and the captain; seven of the men desert-cd. Does not know why. The captain and chief officer did not agree with them. There was about $16 wages due to each of them when they left. Malays frequently leave when their money is due. Was willing to work; stopped work because got only rice for food. He asked for more rations, the captain said that he had given the money to a man named Francis. When they left Shanghai it was arranged that they should get $5 per month for food. The money was paid to Francis. There was a nonth to run before more food money was due. The men all left at one time. Did his work except when sick. Nobody came to see him on board the ship. Had nothing but rice for five days; no one brought me any fruit. Could recognise the men, but "if they saw me they would run away." They would think they were to be taken as deserters. The five scamen deserted because they had too much work. On Saturday night elept in the forecastle; went to bed about six o'clock. Came out once for five minutes about twelve o'clock for necessary purpose. Left the forecastle about half-past five. Does not know whether any one came on board during the night. Had nothing to eat on Sunday on board the ship, because he was ill. Ate very little in Gaol. For two days ate nothing on board. Does not know why the people onboard were siok. Got water from a cask in the forecastle that day, did so every day. That day vomited and threw up blood. Lid not expect any one to visit the ship on Sunday night. Used to get a little hot water from the cook to make tea. Did not go on Sunday morning because he was sick. Did not take water on Saturday morning either. No one came to see him on Saturday morning, No one brought him a bundle either on Friday or Saturday morning. The captain promised to pay for witness's food, but be had no means of obtaining it. Did not buy from the compradore or bum-boat, because the captain did not authorize him to do that. Knows the ghantserang, Sheik Moosee. Was more sick on Sunday than on Saturday. Heported his sickness on Saturday, and had medicine. Saw the doctor about four o'clock on Sunday. Was told when was arrested that the second mate was dead. Saw the second mate lying on the deck, but did not know he was dead,

No one came to see me when sick. Chung Ashing.—When in the American man-of-war went by the name of Afoong. The Coroner here stated that enquiries had been made at the U. S. Naval Yard, which went to show that the witness had been on board the Delaware, and hore a good character. Does not know whether the water in the filter was poisoned. It stands at the cabin door. The water need after the second mate's death was got from a different cask. Does not know anything about a sampan coming alongside. Cookrice for previous witness two days. On Sunday cooked rice for him, but found that he had not finished that of the night before. He gave as his reason that he had nothing to eat with it. On Saturday he began being ill. First saw Ally on bunday morning about seven, or eight o'clock on the forecastle. Does not know whether he was worse on Sunday. Saw a Mawhich seemed to be a cup and plate wrapped up in a handkerchief, on Saturday night. Did not notice how the Mulay behaved on Sunday. John Thomas, watchman on board the Audax, went on board first at six o'clock on Sunday. Was awake all night, as had slept all the day. About eight or nine saw a sampan come straight for the forechains. Spoke to the other watchman, and both went forward. They came just close enough for us to make them out, and then turned charp round, crossed the bows, and went towards Kowloon. We did not bail it. They were talking to each other. They evidently changed their course. It was Ohinese who were pulling. The boat did not come back again. When we first saw the boat she was evidently coming straight towards the ship. There was a little wind, but they had no sail set. When they came near the ship they stopped pulling. The sampan might have hold four besides those pulling. "William Kitson confirmed the evidence of of the previous witness, except that he said they had heiled the boat. He thought it was the other man who did so. He also thought it had gone to the Hongkong side.
